

Starting with the code you developed in HW6, make the following additions (be sure you update your `main` function to test the new features in this assignment).

1. Make your class a template, where you can supply any reasonable numeric type (be sure you test with at least `int` and `double`).
2. Supply a complete program that exercises your class.

You must supply a listing of your program and sample output.